French opposition to British membership meant that London had to wait more.